

MAS Retirement Savings Scheme
Moderate Fund
Monthly Fund Fact Sheet as at 31 May 2026

Market commentary

Global equities extended their rally in May, with US markets and some others reaching record highs. US shares led gains, supported by easing geopolitical concerns, falling oil prices, and strong earnings. Technology was the dominant driver, with AI-linked names delivering strong returns, including significant moves in semiconductor stocks. European and Australasian markets also rose. Momentum remains, though valuations and sensitivity to renewed risks leave markets more exposed to changes in outlook.

NZ interest rates followed global trends through May, rising earlier before easing in the back half of the month. The 10-year NZ Government bond yield ended around 4.5%. The OCR was left unchanged, though the decision appeared finely balanced, with some committee members favouring hikes. This keeps upward pressure in play. For cash portfolios and income assets, current yields remain supportive, though uncertainty around inflation and policy timing continues to drive variability across the curve.

All returns are in local currency terms unless stated.
